

Announcement of “Local and Systemic Management of Primary Breast Cancers” by Masakazu Toi (Kyoto University) and Eric P. Winer (eds) (Harvard University) and published by Kyoto University Press & Trans Pacific Press

KBCCC is an international medical congress endeavouring to reach a consensus regarding medical treatment methods between doctors and medical staff members involved in the treatment of breast cancer. The aim is to achieve better treatment results of breast cancer, which has recently been increasing rapidly, and for the improvement of QOL of patients (Quality of life - degree of satisfaction mentally, physically, socially, culturally and intellectually on a daily basis).

The handbook is the culmination of the results of the consensus, painstakingly compiled into a single journal by the many world-renowned breast oncologists involved in KBCCC. It is an invaluable tool to medical professionals for the furtherment of breast cancer treatment and the improvement of QOL of breast cancer patients.
